Vol. 22

Chinook, Alberta. Thursday December 18th 1941

THE WEEK IN EDMONTON

Stand by orders received here by reserved military units found all officers and ranks ready to leave present occupations on short notice. Two cabinet ministers were among those effected by the orders. They are Hon. E. C. Manning, who is a lieutenant in the 2nd Batt. Edmonton Regiment, (R) and Hon. Lucien Maynard, a ranker in the artillery.

WAR ON THE HOME FRONT

Canada has declared war -- this time on the home front.

It is war against an enemy as ruthless and implacable as Hitler.

The resulting combat will be felt in every city, town and village in the Dominion, in every township and back concessions in the most remote parts of the country.

Another army is on the march -- this time an army of twelve million Canadians -- on the march against a foe that would wreck Canada's economy and deal her a contribution to Empire defence a blow as deadly as a major defeat by the Nazis.

The war is declared, as of December 1st, against spiralling prices, against the haunting spectre of inflation.

Cause of the war is too much money in consumers' hands for the available supply of goods.

WEAPONS FOR NET WAR

weapons in this gigantic struggle will not be guns, planes, tanks and bombs. They will consist of vigilance, self-abnegation, compromise and the Golden Rule.

We have just come from General Headquarters where we heard the General Staff map out the plan of campaign in a masterly way, a plan for which no blueprint existed, an attack over a No Man's Land hitherto untrod.

The Commanders are resolute in their determination that the plan will succeed, not just for a sortie but for attainment of the final objective. It must succeed; they aver, or we're licked in more ways than one.

Every last Canadian is being recruited for this fight to a finish. There will be no uniforms no brass band, no tinsel or glamour in this battle. Just a niche in the civilian army that is pointing to win the greatest battle on the home front.

The enemy is no phantom, but a real and potent figure. He may be easily discerned in the rising price of nearly every commodity being sold in Canada which, until Ottawa took a hand, threatened to get completely out of control, as seen in the 16 per cent increase in cost of living since the war against Hitlerism began.

The declaration of war establishes an absolute ceiling on prices of all kinds, with a very few exceptions, as they existed during the basic period, Sept. 15th to Oct. 11th, 1941. The exceptions are for inevitable seasonal fluctuations as in the case of fruits and vegetables. The clarion call comes to all Canadians to ensure that this ceiling will not be punctured.

Old Methods Employed

Makers Of Gold Leaf Now Producing A Gossamer Gold

London is now sending out to many quarters of the globe a gossamer gold that is an improvement on the ancient gold leaf. Craftsmen make the leaf one 200,000th of an inch in thickness. Seven years ago, the world's biggest makers of gold-leaf began research work to produce leaf which would lie more evenly. Using an eight-pound hammer on a marble bench the workers beat out leaf as frail as gossamer. The ancient methods are still employed for gold-leaf used by sign and interior decorators.

Making Tour Of India

Recruiting Train Will Go To Every Section Of Country

Servicemen train, the first of its kind seen in India, has started a tour that will take it to every section of the country. More than 1,000 feet long, the train is made up of sections representing air force, army and navy, India's medical services, munitions industry and other branches of the war effort. Among demonstrators are officers and men of the armed forces. The train carries a pipe band and a recruiting office.

Control Of Prices

The rapid expansion of war industries during the past year has created an enormous demand for raw materials. So much so that shortages of supplies have been rapidly developing for some time. It was found necessary to place certain restrictions on various articles of manufacture in order to curtail the use of many materials that enter into the production of weapons of war. If more drastic measures were not enforced, the demand for war products would be of such a nature that it would cause very serious competition amongst consumers, resulting in constantly rising prices. This trouble would not be confined to a limited number of essential war materials, but would no doubt soon affect practically all commodities. The rapid increase in the cost of living during the last six months of 1941, is indicative of this trend. The cost of living is shown to have risen over seven points in that period. It has been apparent for some time that drastic measures should be taken to halt this upward trend.

The Inflation Danger

We have the lesson of what might be expected to happen if the mounting spiral of prices remained unchecked. It would quickly tend to curtail the purchasing power of the dollar, and would result in severe hardship for the working man, and particularly for those of small means. Followed to its ultimate conclusion our currency would deflate in value, and a state of chaos would be the result. Incomes in the past have never kept pace with the rising cost of living, and for the large class of people in Canada who have had difficulty in meeting their obligations in normal times, undue inflation would mean for them disaster and unbearable hardship. In a period of scarcity there is bound to be a bidding up of prices, and the individual with the longest purse is the one who can secure the most goods. Those of more modest means must get along on less buying of the necessities of life, and thus suffer to a greater or less degree as a consequence. Difficult indeed would be the lot of the masses whose earnings would fall far short of the amount necessary to secure a just quota for their subsistence. What has resulted in other countries and in other times as a result of inflation is too well known and has been stated so often, that it does not need repetition.

The Price Ceiling

The time has now come to take drastic measures aimed at controlling prices, and as a consequence the Canadian Government has under the wartime prices and trade board regulations, created a price ceiling and fixed the prices as at the basic period from September 15 to October 11, 1941. Basic wage rates have also been stabilized in relation to the general price level, coupled with a cost of living bonus. It is conceivable that some hardships will result to certain dealers and merchants, and it may be expected that losses will have to be absorbed in making necessary adjustments. Where the prices of a commodity, such as wheat, were too low, at the basic period, some provision should be made for elasticity in price stabilizing. It has been pointed out that wheat was selling at depressed prices at the period chosen for fixing prices, and it is obvious that the government might well give some special consideration for the plight in which the western wheat grower now finds himself. Wages have gone up in industrial areas, and the returns for the man on the land, in all justification, should be on something approaching a parity. However it is to be hoped and expected that many of these difficulties will eventually be ironed out, and this without undue hardship being entailed. In no other way can the danger of inflation be averted, and it will require the united support and co-operation of all the people of Canada. Each one of us in his own interest and self-protection should lend his support to a measure designed to keep down the high cost of living, to stabilize our currency, and to further our war effort.

Better Tourist Business

1940 Business Shows Favorable Balance Of $85,000,000

Preliminary estimates of Canada's 1940 tourist business show a favorable balance of $85,000,000. J. M. Coyne of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics told a meeting of the Canadian Association of Tourist and Publicity Bureaus.

Figures, not yet complete, indicate that receipts from tourists totalled $125,000,000 against expenditures of $45,000,000. Mr. Coyne said.

Animated cartoons are being prepared to teach the men of the armed forces strategy, tactics, gunnery and other training subjects.

Design Has Been Approved

British Smokers Will Be Using Lighter Invented By Girl

Because of the shortage of matches in Britain, millions of persons there will soon be lighting their cigarettes and pipes with a standard lighter made of plastic material. The invention of Diana Berry, a 21-year-old girl, the design has been approved by Britain's tobacco controller, board of trade and the British standards institute. It will cost the public about $1.50, and manufacturers are prepared to make 4,000,000 for a start.

The use of plastics for the lighter, only the flint wheel is of metal—provides another example of the value of these materials at a time when metals of all kinds are rare. Made from raw materials of which there are unlimited supplies in Britain, plastics are being used in the production of aeroplanes, radio and electrical equipment, binoculars, spectacles and submarine periscopes, gear-wheels and bearings, and even houses, coffins and dinghies.

Rates of pay for farm labor in Canada reached their highest point in 1940.

CHIEF OF STAFF

General Sir Alan Francis Brooke (above), 55, crack specialist in mechanized war, has been appointed chief of the imperial general staff. He succeeds General Sir John Dill, who retires Dec. 25 at the age of 60. Sir John was made field marshal and will become governor of Bombay.

Is Here To Stay

Speakers Might Just As Well Get Used To Microphone

In the good old days there were politicians who could fill vast outdoor areas with their voice and cause the roofs of huge skating rinks and arenas to send back loud reverberations. There are still men in public life who can speak to an audience assembled in a large hall, and make it possible for those in the back seats to hear. However, the loud speaker system or amplifier introduced in recent years is a splendid throat-saver, and anyone aspiring to office in agricultural organizations should submit to this innovation. Men up in years are inclined to stay away from the mike because it is one of these new inventions. It may be a new contraption, but it is a very useful one, and any audience on a large convention floor would prefer to listen to the metallic sound of the amplifier rather than sit beyond the range of a feeble, untrained voice coming half way to them from the platform.

On some convention floors they even have extensions which are carried to members of the audience who wish to ask a question or make some comment. The mike is here to stay, like the automobile, the airplane, hydro electric power and the radio. We might as well get used to it—Farrer's Advocate.

Results Are Encouraging

Newest Canadian-Produced Tanks Were Given Stiff Tests

Experts of armored warfare in the Canadian army have been putting the newest and biggest of Canadian-produced tanks through its paces at Camp Borden, Ont., and the results have been encouraging.

Although its weight—about 30 tons—places it in the medium class, observers are calling it Canada's first heavy. It is bigger, faster and more heavily armed than the Valentine medium being produced in quantity.

Because of its mobility and weight, it is known to the men testing it as Ram 1. Steered by tiller—one for each track—it is a first cousin to the American M3 tank now being supplied by the United States to British forces in England and Africa. The Ram has a cast hull, powerful radial-type engine, and uses a high-octane fuel.

Its test crews are men from the experimental wing of the Canadian armored corps, and it recently was taken through a full demonstration for representatives of the United States army.

Kulibyshev, formerly Samara, temporary capital of the U.S.S.R., was named in honor of the man who won and defended it for the Soviet.

Peru is the world's largest source of vanadium and is said to be the only country in which the metal is mined for itself alone.

The Cruel Huns

A Royal Marine, Taken Prisoner By The Germans At Calais, Describes Life In The Hands Of The Huns

After I was taken prisoner I had 21 days with these chaps. Our column was herded along through the Belgian villages which the Germans had just captured. Our guards had tommy-guns, and they had whips, and they drove us along like cattle, flogging us whenever they felt like it, mostly on the back of the neck, just to show us and the Belgians who was boss. Sometimes they would make us run through the villages, holding our hands above our heads, cracking the whips all round the column.

They gave us no food, and so after a mile or two we all got very hungry. We were sleeping out in the fields, or sometimes in an orchard, and some of the men tried to get apples from the trees. But the guards shot them. The Belgian people tried to give us food as we went along in the line of march. Some of the men would stretch out their hands to take a piece of bread, and they were shot too. The nearest German picked them off with his tommy-gun, and they left the bodies lying in the road. Some of them used the bayonet instead.

You may not believe it, but they would tell a man who had collapsed to sit on the wing of a car as if they were going to give him a lift. Then the driver would zig-zag up the road so that he fell off. Then he would usually get run over by the back wheels.

They treated the old women and children worse than they did us, but I think they treated the French Colonial troops the worst of the lot, killing them and whipping them like slaves, just to hear them shout.

Will Wear Made-Overs

Princess Margaret To Have Clothes Elizabeth Has Outgrown

Despite the fact that many Canadian girls are donning the uniforms of the C.W.A.C. and the C.W.A.A.F. this fall, the thoughts of the average Canadian woman still lightly turn to gay new winter wardrobes. Colors are brighter than ever, hats brims are bigger, costume jewelry is more exotic.

In England it's a different story. The introduction of clothes rationing did not mean that there was an acute shortage of clothing. The shelves in the stores are still well stocked. But it did mean that the government was serious about cutting down consumer spending and at the same time achieving a greater fairness in distribution.

Even the little princesses may soon be wearing made-overs. They grow out of their clothes rapidly, and the Queen has decided that 11-year-old Princess Margaret shall wear some of the clothes which her elder sister has outgrown.

SELECTED RECIPES

ALL-BRAN PRUNE MUFFINS

2 tablespoons shortening
1/2 cup sugar
1 egg
2 cups All-Bran
1/2 cup milk
1 cup flour
1/2 teaspoon salt

2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 cup soaked, chopped prunes
Cream shortening and sugar together until light and fluffy. Add All-Bran and milk; let soak until most of moisture is taken up. Sift flour with salt and baking powder; add chopped prunes; add to first mixture and stir only until flour is moistened. Pour into muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) about 30 minutes.

Yield: 5 1/2 muffins (3 inches in diameter) or 12 small muffins (2 1/2 inches in diameter).

Note: When sour milk or buttercup is used instead of sweet milk, reduce baking powder to 1 teaspoon and add 1/2 teaspoon soda.

Use Not Restricted

Patent Cannot Be Secured In Canada For "V" Sign

In Canada anybody is free to use the "V" for victory sign and an Order-in-Council forbids anybody patenting the emblem in Canada.

This order was passed some time ago. At the time it was felt the symbol had become one of too great significance to allow any restriction of its use by allowing a patent in Canada.

Since then it has come into use for cancelling stamps on mail and, say authorities of the State Department, it is going to continue to have this free-and-easy status in Canada despite action of Pratho P. Scott of Tulsa, Okla., taking out a patent on the "V" sign in the United States.

Some natives of the South Sea Islands paint their bodies a deep blue and add small touches of yellow and white.

BANKER EMPHASIZES OBLIGATIONS WHICH MAINTENANCE OF DEMOCRACY IS DEMANDING

Hunty Drummond Says Bank Is Working Half Of Year For Governments Through Taxation—Urges Removal Of Government Controls After War "With All Possible Speed"

Jackson Dodds, Presenting General Managers' Report, Shows Bank's Assets Over Billion Mark—Warns Against Specious Monetary Reforms In Solution Of Post-War Problems

"Democracy gives us great privileges, but every privilege has its everliving except ultimate freedom itself," declared Hunty R. Drummond in his presidential address, in which he emphasized in plain language the immensity of the task facing Canada and the Empire in bringing the present struggle to a successful conclusion.

Pointing out that the war is costing Canada some two hundred million dollars a month, Mr. Drummond dwelt at length on the ways and means by which the money was being raised.

In discussing the tax situation, the president gave graphic illustrations which emphasized the tremendous proportions when he said: "Your bank pays all the taxes in Canada as it does in the first six months of the year we work for Governments, the last six for ourselves."

Government Controls

While recognizing the need for Government controls and regulations in time of war, the president emphasized the vital importance of removing these restrictions after the war is over.

"Nothing," he said, "can stifle individual effort more effectively than excessive regulation and high taxation, and no one can undertake new ventures unless permitted to retain the profit which arises from successful effort."

General Managers' Report Shows Assets Over Billion Mark

On the basis of his report, Mr. Dodds told general manager G. W. Smyth, presented a financial statement which revealed operations of the bank at the highest levels in its long history, reflecting the record activity of industry and commerce arising from the war.

Profits for the year, after the deduction of Dominion Government taxes of $2,243,000, were reported at $3,437,000, as compared with $3,436,000 in 1940.

Total assets amounted to $1,046,000 compared with $961,300,000 a year ago. Commercial loans in Canada were reported at $253,500,000, an increase of $36,000,000. Liquid assets at $706,000,000 were

"ALL THAT GLITTERS"

— By —
ANNE TEDLOCK BROOKS

CHAPTER I.

Tamar lifted startled eyes from her book.

Ransome Todd's long, lean body swung gracefully in the saddle of the roan horse, as he drew up beside the stone boy holding the hitching rings.

"Tam!" he shouted, sliding to the ground and hastening toward her. "Tam!" the words tumbled out of his mouth. "The Major's struck gold!"

Tamar greeted his excitement with amazing calm. " Didn't you expect him to?" She made a place for him beside her on the white bench and leaned back and observed him through black lashes. She looked as though she were amused at his excitement. "We've always known gold was there, Ransome," she said, unrruffled. She shrugged her slender shoulders. "Does it make a lot of difference?"

"But don't you understand, Tamar, that you're rich now? You won't have to worry about anything. You'll have enough money for as long as you live! Think what it means, too, to Tahlahneka."

"What does it mean to Tahlahneka?" she asked softly.

"Why—why—" exasperated, he gave up. He stood and kicked at the turf with his boot.

"Tahlahneka has been doing all right," Tam continued. "There's nothing that can change Tahlahneka."

Why, the ground's rank with gold. She had heard this statement hundreds of times. It was the townspeople's favorite subject, the gold that lay underneath their feet in vast and fabulous amounts. Something to dream and talk about, during the day's hottest hours.

"Don't get yourself worked up, Ransome."

"Aristotle!" she called, and the thin little Negro crossing the terrace at an ambling pace, paused expectantly.

"Yas'm Miz Tam?" He scratched his back while he waited, twisting ludicrously to hit the right spot.

"Go tell Phoebe to serve some drinks and cookies."

"Thanks, don't bother. I must be on my way," Ransome Todd said, striking his riding boots with his crop.

"Relax, Ranny. Honestly, it's too warm for any use to-day. Sit down and tell me about the sale." She looked cool enough, he was thinking. He felt like groaning. He wanted to reach out and touch a crisp, black curling hair that framed her lower-face, kiss the red lips that could turn up so provokingly—as they were.

He sat stiffly erect and his blonde head was too handsomely sculptured to be turned absurdly into an aurore, angel-fashion by the sun's brightness.

Ranny stared out in front of him, at the rolling velvet of the shaven lawn, with its clipped hedges, its yew trees and the magnolias in broken panorama. He drew a deep breath. This was the Georgia they had always known and loved.

He had not been afraid for his own future; but the Randolphs, he knew, were on their last legs. He'd heard his father discussing another loan with Knox Randolph only yesterday. The great, rambling, white house needed painting. The shutters were in need of repair, and the whole place was going down hard. Major Towne had just struck gold in the Old Cricket Hill Mine, on Randolph land, and Tamar wanted to hear about a plantation the bank had foreclosed on yesterday!

He closed his lips firmly in silence. Tamar looked up with interest as Phoebe, her ample figure waddling, crossed the verandah bearing a tray with glasses and pitcher of frosted juices.

"Aristotle, min' what Ah said! Go on, now, fore Ah lam yuh!" She addressed her offspring. He scuttled across the lawn in a leap.

Tamar started to clear the small table of its books and magazines, and Ransome leaped to perform the service. "It looks mighty good," he said. "Phoebe, you certainly take a man angel food."

"Yas'm, Mist' Todd; Ah shoo!" She gratified him with a sunburst of dazzling, white teeth. "Ah's lookin' fo' the Major Tech. I saw him only at dinner last night, but didn't get to talk with him."

"They ate dinner with you?" He kept his tone definitely casual, as though it made not the slightest difference to him where the Major and this Christopher Sande had procured their evening meal.

"Yes; they stayed here. They and Dad ate their early breakfast and were out to the mine a little after 7. Look! There's the Major's car now."

The big, black limousine stopped in front of the side portico and the three men got out. The Major, puffing and giving the impression of haste, scurried over the ground with animated dignity. Knox Randolph, Tamar's father, paused by the car door to wave a greeting to his daughter and the handsome Todd boy. The other man lifted a brief case out of the back seat and followed his hurrying employer.

Ransome gave Sande a searching look; found him well built, with strong, clear-cut features and well groomed appearance. Christopher Sande. Sounded English to him. He lit a cigarette and smoked in silence.

Tamar laughed. "Major Towne looked rather excited."

It was more than Ransome could bear. He gave vent to a long drawn-out groan. "The man's struck gold, Tam! A rich strike. He had caught on at the dentist's that he expected to take out $10,000 a day. Tie that, if you can."

He leaned over confidentially. "Now, the thing for your father to do, Tam, is to sit tight. Make the major offer him big enough percentage of the whole take to keep the fortune where it belongs."

"Oh, but I think Dad's already leased it to him, Ranny."

She stared at him unbelievably. She nodded, offering him another piece of cake. "I heard them say last night they'd already drawn up the contract."

"He couldn't have done that!"

"I know it. But darn it all, Tam, don't you see? Why, it's like betraying whole generations of Randolphs!"

Ranny jumped to his feet and knocked over his glass. The bright liquid spread out in waves on the snowy cloth. "It's like betraying all of us. The whole town of Tahlahneka. Lease the Cricket Hill to a rank outsider! Why—why the man's from New York, Tam!"

Tamar's laughter rang out. "You sound just like you meant Hades, Ranny. What's wrong with New York? I hear there's lots of money there cached away in a place known as Wall St."

She stood up, and her black head barely reached Todd's shoulder. "Look, Ranny, honey, you're all worked up! It doesn't mean anything to us, but that we'll have money to pay that last loan instead of renewing it, and Mother can have that expensive operation."

She turned her blue eyes away so that he couldn't see how wide she had to open them to keep the tears from spilling.

But count on Ranny to see something like that.

"I'm sorry, Tamar. I know you need the money. I'd give you every cent I have—which isn't very much—if you'd take it." He touched her rounded white arm, and the little blue cap of sleeve trembled suddenly.

Tamar was shaken and white. "I didn't want to leave it, Ranny. But you don't know how awful things have been. Oh, we've kept up a front all right," she said bitterly.

Ransome looked any place but at her brimming eyes. It was somehow sacrilegious to hear Tamar Randolph being bitter.

"We've not really had the things we should this year, Ranny. I don't mind for myself, but Dad hates to be a failure. And Mother doesn't know that we sold you Tahlahneka II. That 2-year-old was almost like a member of the family. Dad meant to enter him in the Derby next year!"

"I know how you feel. We were given a heritage that was too expensive for us to keep up in modern times and conditions." He took a sweeping look at Shadwell.

The whole plantation was out of a single hook. Untouched by the War between the States, the mansion had stood for generations exuding an atmosphere of gentle living. Now the east wing, that looked out upon the Chesapeake River, had upon the hospitable front door needed new hinges, the wide verandah had a step which crumbled dangerously, but the big round columns held their burden gallantly aloft.

Ransome wondered if the floor of the captain's walk outside Tamar's window had ever been repainted. He remembered the sickening splintering of the boards as he went through them one day years ago, when he and Tamar's cousin had wrestled on the little porch. He had caught at an ivy covered shutter on the way down and saved his "handsome neck by a thread," as Phoebe said, in her disgruntled anger.

Nooseprint For Dogs

Found To Be Only Satisfactory Method Of Identification

While his master is fingerprinted for identification purposes, Rover now has nooseprints.

And when the U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation catalogues human fingerprints, the National Nooseprint Bureau does the same for the canine world.

Acting on the generally accepted fact that nooseprinting is the only positive method of identifying dogs, the bureau has offices throughout the country and keeps records of all registered dogs.

According to U.S. Madden, unit director for the Pittsburgh area, the bureau's system of nooseprinting has been effective in settling numerous court cases involving stolen dogs, in betraying "dogpayers," and in the returning of stray dogs to their rightful owners.

"Nearly one million dollars' worth of dogs is lost yearly," Madden said. "This loss can be cut down greatly if all dogs in the area are nooseprinted, giving the bureau a positive identification to aid in its search."

The nooseprinting system was first reserved for show dogs imported from other countries. When the paw printing system proved inadequate because hair on the paws made prints unsatisfactory, the nooseprinting identification was more widely used according to Madden.

The National Nooseprint Bureau works in close collaboration with veterinarians, the Humane Society and organizations like the Animal Rescue League.

You really can learn Pitman at home. It's an easy system of writing symbols, each representing a sound in English (there aren't very many different sounds)—little curve for "F," a straight line for

Up that when you take dictation you don't spell words out; you write by sound only.

Suppose, for instance, you hear the word "toward." While "represented" looks like a pyramid.

With regular practice you soon begin to feel for the job that may lead to—who knows what exciting future?

Our 32-page booklet explains Pitman shorthand in 18 complete lessons, containing exercises in all short forms. Also gives you a table of additional short forms for business.

Need Sound Judgment

Scholastic Standing Not Only Thing Required For Nurse's Training

Britain has the makings of a first-class controversy, in the advocacy by The Lancet, world-famous medical journal, of the training of girls in nursing at a younger age than that, at which they are now permitted to take courses. Not only the medical profession, but laymen as well, can be counted on to have decided ideas on this subject.

The Lancet says that many girls at fifteen are fitted to take the training, and this will evoke much argument. There are, of course, girls who at that age have achieved the requisite scholastic standing, but the average person likes to think of nurses as women who have reached years of discretion and sound judgment. After all, human lives are in their keeping, and faith in their ability counts for much in the recovery of a patient.—Windsor Star.

Success

On Monday evening in the crowded Hall at the Chinook Hotel, Cosley Bros. the local John Deere dealers, gave a full night's entertainment, which was sponsored by The John Deere Plow Co. The weather was ideal and hundreds came from far and near to accept the hospitality and enjoy the educational John Deere Moving Picture showing the assembling of John Deere Combines at their huge factory. Showing also the different models and sizes of John Deere Tractors and complete line of John Deere farm implements.

The main feature of this year's John Deere Show was produced in Hollywood this past summer for this exclusive showing, with such outstanding stars as "Slim Summerville", "Zasu Pitts" and "Gale Storm".

Lucky Number winners went to Mrs. Norman O'Malley and Mr. McNally, prizes were donated by the local dealers.

It was generally agreed that the Show was the best one yet and everyone seemed to enjoy themselves to the fullest extent.

TO THE WOMEN OF CANADA

Here is One Big War Job which You Alone Can Do

"Ceiling Prices" Must Be Maintained

This is an appeal to the women of Canada. There is one vital part of our war effort which depends on you.

Your government has placed a "ceiling" on retail prices. You are the buyers of four out of every five dollars worth of all the goods sold in this country. Your whole-hearted help is needed in this price control plan. If every woman does her part, it cannot fail.

Its success will be a big step on the road to victory. Its failure would be a serious blow to our war effort. You can tip the balance towards success.

Will you, then, undertake to make the successful control of commodity prices an established fact? We know you will. And we know that when you undertake this task it is as good as done.

This is the work you are asked to do

1. Make a List of Commodities

We want you to sit down today and make a list of the things you buy from week to week and from month to month. Write down food and clothing items in particular, because these account for the biggest share of your expenditures. But we want you to list those articles you buy at the drug store, hardware store, and other stores, too.

3. Write down prices

After each item we want you to write down, if you can, the highest price charged at your store during the period September 15 to October 11, 1941. If you cannot remember the prices charged during that period, fill in your list with today's prices. Our survey shows that retailers, with few exceptions, are keeping prices well within the "ceiling" levels. As exceptions are being discovered they are being quickly brought into line.

4. Keep this list—use it when you buy!

Make up this price list neatly and accurately. You will not be able to get all the items at once. Keep adding to your list from day to day. Make it your permanent check list—your personal safeguard against any further rise in prices.

Prices May be Different in Different Stores

There has always been a difference in prices in different stores—even stores in the same locality. This may depend on the kind of service the store gives, or the way it operates. Some stores, for instance, have delivery service, give credit, provide home service, etc.

Under the new Price Control Order there will still be differences in prices at different stores. The new price regulations will not do away with competition. The highest prices in any particular store must not be higher than the highest prices in force in that store during the period September 15 to October 11. They may be a little lower or a little higher than the prices in other stores.

The prices you will mark down will be the highest prices charged at the store where you shop.

A Few Points to Remember

1. The ceiling price is not necessarily the price you paid. It is the highest price at which the store sold the particular item between September 15 and October 11.

2. A merchant may reduce his prices for sales or other reasons—he may also raise them provided they do not go above the ceiling price.

3. Variations in seasonal prices on fresh fruits and vegetables are permitted. Rulings on seasonal marketings will be announced from time to time by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board in newspapers and over the radio.

4. Fill out your price list without bothering your merchant. In many cases he is making a financial sacrifice to sell under the price ceiling. The war has left him short-staffed and the Christmas rush is on.

Items most frequently bought

This is not intended as a complete list. It is simply offered as a guide. Add to it the other items you buy or expect to buy.

Item	Description (Size, Quality, etc.)	Store	Price	Item	Description (Size, Quality, etc.)	Store	Price
FOOD				CLOTHING (Men's, Women's, Children's)
Milk				Coats
Butter				Sweaters
Eggs				Suits
Sugar				Dresses
Tea, Coffee				Skirts, Blouses
Flour				Shirts
Cereals				Underwear
Bread				Boots and shoes
Meat				Rubbers, Goloshes
Canned Goods				Stockings
OPERATING EXPENSES				Socks
Laundry and cleaning				Hats, Gloves
Soaps and other cleaning agents
Blankets, Sheets, Towels

Why you must do your part

To ensure the success of this price control plan, every woman in Canada should make a list. Retailers are showing a splendid spirit of co-operation. The great majority of them are determined to make this plan work, but if you do not co-operate the whole plan might fail—prices might start to skyrocket. So keep your list handy. Check the prices you pay against it.

If a price seems higher than the ceiling, ask your merchant about it. If further information is necessary, report the full details in writing. Address your letter to the Prices and Supply Representative, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, at any of the following: Vancouver, Edmonton, Regina, Winnipeg, North Bay, London, Toronto, Guelph, Montreal, Quebec City, Saint John, Halifax, Charlottetown.

Director, Agricultural Department

North-West Line Elevators Association

AN ILLUSTRATED GUIDE TO

PRairie Weeds

The above title is the name chosen for a new 72-page bulletin just published by the Agricultural Department of The North-West Line Elevators Association. This bulletin contains 120 photographs of common weeds, and four of the illustrations are in full color. All of the weeds illustrated are also described, and there are 322 species. The illustrations are at the end of the bulletin will be found photographs of seeds of 60 different weeds.

The chief purpose of the bulletin is to help farmers in their efforts in identifying weeds. A few remarks on control methods are offered in most cases, but these are brief. Methods of control will depend on local conditions and, hence, specific recommendations can rarely be applied to large areas.

This is particularly important in fighting weeds to know them. This is particularly true of perennials such as Leafy Spurge, Hoary Cress and others. Control is relatively easy if undertaken in time, and a delay of two or three years may be costly.

It has been stated that, in the United States, losses from weeds are one-half to one-half times as great as the combined loss due to animal diseases, plant diseases and insect pests. The situation on the Canadian prairie is not so bad, but not so good.

The new bulletin will be found most helpful, and should be in the hands of every prairie province farmer. Copies may be obtained free of charge from main buyers of any line elevator company associated with this Department, or from The North-West Line Elevators Association, Winnipeg or Calgary.
